

About US

WAIRC provides a mediation service which is informal, responsive, easily accessible, affordable and effective for any question, dispute or difficulty that arises out of employment

How it can help

WAIRC Commissioners can also provide mediation where the employment may be under the national industrial relations system.

What the service provides

The mediation service provides for an Industrial Relations Commissioner to help resolve employment disputes by assisting you to find the best solution for your workplace.

Where it takes place

The mediation can take place at the Commission or a Commissioner can come out to your site, workplace or offices if this would better assist in the resolution of a dispute

Informal to enforceable

We can informally assist or we can make a binding determination. Its up to the parties to choose.
